

Corporate Sentiment, Emotion & Brand Analysis: Nigerian Police Force

Based on the uploaded comments, the dominant sentiment is overwhelmingly negative, driven by allegations of police brutality, corruption, extortion, lack of accountability, and low public trust. Positive comments acknowledge improved leadership, crime-fighting efforts, and public engagement.

Estimated Sentiment Distribution

Dominant Emotions: Anger, Fear, Frustration, Distrust, Sadness, with smaller levels of Hope and Appreciation.

NER Highlights: Nigerian Police Force (NPF), Inspector General (IGP), Delta State, Cross River, Enugu, Festac, Ikorodu, FCT, Kubwa, Udenu, Dave Umahi.

POS Highlights: Frequent nouns (police, justice, officers, citizens, corruption), verbs (kill, arrest, extort, protect, reform), adjectives (corrupt, innocent, modern, trusted).

Statistical Summary

Negative≈72%, Neutral≈18%, Positive≈10%. Top themes: brutality, corruption/extortion, accountability, reform, welfare, technology/body cameras, community policing.

Brand Assessment: Brand trust is critically weakened. Public perception is dominated by safety concerns, abuse of power and corruption, although a minority recognize improvements under current leadership.

Recommendations: 1. Zero tolerance for brutality and extortion. 2. Deploy body-worn cameras. 3. Improve officer welfare and training. 4. Strengthen community policing. 5. Publish transparent disciplinary actions. 6. Digitize complaints and investigations. 7. Increase positive citizen engagement and crisis communication.